Non-governmental organizations (NGOs) are a key element to any society and the company seeks to build constructive relationships with such organizations in building a better society and environment--in an economically sustainable matter.

The company promise to engage and consider the specific developmental needs of communities in which it operates.

D. Implementation

I. Means to obtain advice

Many business decisions involve ethical dilemmas and require complex judgments to make the right choice. In cases of uncertainty, all officers and employees are expected to act responsibly and raise the ethical dilemma with their managers. Should this not lead to a satisfactory solution, the ethical issue is to be raised with a designated officer to obtain clarification. All officers and employees have the right to make confidential reports directly to the designated officer who in turn shall decide whether to report the matter to the audit committee to recommend appropriate action against any director or employee who acts in a manner inconsistent with this code of ethics.

II. Processes and responsibility

Each individual is responsible for his or her ethical behavior. Adherence to this Code is further made obligatory as it is referenced in all employee contracts and linked to disciplinary procedures. A copy of this code of ethics is given to every employee on his or her first working day.

Department heads are accountable to the CEO and/or executives for implementing this code of ethics within their departments, ensuring that all officers and employees understand it, and for providing assurance on compliance. The CEO and/or executives are in turn accountable to the board.

The principles and provisions in this code of ethics have been integrated into the company's system of internal control. Rigorous and objective processes to measure performance, identify gaps and implement measures to address ethical gaps are regularly reviewed and modified.

Willful or careless breach or neglect of this code of ethics will be treated as a serious disciplinary matter and can lead to the termination of employment.

The board's audit committee periodically reviews and updates compliance with these principles, and formulates proposals for the board's approval.

III. Training program

The company offers an introductory ethics-training course once per year for all new officers and employees along with Company's introduction. This course offers practical examples of this code of ethics in action.

Periodic and specialized training courses are further offered to the company's officers and employees, as well as to the company's other stakeholders such as suppliers and other business partners, as part of the company's continuous professional education program.
